

REDEMPTION BOOTH

It was my first experience as a Parent Volunteer at the Children's Day Carnival. I was astounded at the number of programmes and activities that had been prepared for this special celebration.

At the Redemption Booth, our first student walked into the room to redeem her prize as early as 9am. She must have whizzed through the games to get there this early! The students earned their stamps from each game station they completed. When they had accumulated 10 stamps on their redemption card, they could redeem prizes. A completed card earned them one prize item from a wide selection of stationery, key chains, toys, hair accessories and a packet of snack of their choice.

By 10am, you could hear the excitement buzzing outside the redemption room. You would think that in all their excitement, it would have been chaotic but it wasn't! The girls queued for their turn anxiously but patiently to choose their prize.

While browsing at the tables that were filled with prize items, some girls were in contemplative thoughts while others were overly excited. Once they had eagerly picked a prize, they scurried off to the games stations to fill in a second redemption card. We also encountered heart-warming moments, when a student shared her prize with a friend who had lost her redemption card.

It was a very enjoyable experience for all of us and we're glad to have been part of this year's Children's Day Celebration - nothing beats the smile on our children's faces. We are definitely looking forward to next year!
